

Williamson, Caroline. "2020 Year in Review: Unframed," Design Milk, 22 December 2020.

Every month our resident art expert, David Behringer, searches for the best of what's happening in modern art in New York City galleries. He seeks the best exhibitions and shows that most of us wouldn't even know existed, and shares an up close and personal view of the artist and their work. If you missed any of his posts or just want to take another look, read on for a visual exploration of NYC's art scene that David covered in our Unframed column in 2020.

The Nailed Sculpture of Robert Kobayashi

Robert Kobayashi's intensely nailed sculptures are a textural treat for the eyes. Each object radiates the inspiring spirit of an artist who blazed his own path to eventually find his home (and personal art gallery) in a former butcher shop in Little Italy. "Moe's Meat Market", a selection of sculpture and a documentation of his unusual art space, was on view at Susan Inglett Gallery in New York through November 7th.
