

Staff. "Telling Stories: Resilience and Struggle in Contemporary Narrative Drawing," Apollo Magazine, 13 November 2020.

APOLLO

THE INTERNATIONAL ART MAGAZINE

An Unkindness(detail; 2019), Robyn O'Neil. © Robyn O'Neil

This display looks at the differing approaches taken by three contemporary artists to the genre of narrative drawing. Robyn O'Neil's large-scale graphite compositions depict vast, forbidding landscapes - heaving oceans and desolate tundra wastes - populated by minute human figures; Annie Pootoogook's colourful depictions of Inuit home life depict a culture in flux and challenge stereotypical depictions; and Amy Cutler's magical realist fantasies conjure a fictional community of women living in hollowed-out tree trunks. The exhibition opens on 21 November (until 14 February); find out more from the Toledo Museum of Art's website.

An Unkindness(2019), Robyn O'Neil. © Robyn O'Neil