

Segal, Mark. "The Art Scene 12.03.20," The East Hampton Star, 3 December 2020.

Ryan Wallace in Chelsea

"The Unanimous Hour," a solo exhibition of mixed-media paintings by Ryan Wallace, is on view at Susan Inglett Gallery in Chelsea through Jan. 16. Mr. Wallace, who lives in Brooklyn and East Hampton, repurposes fragments from earlier and developing works, layering those materials, which include oil, enamel, acrylic, Mylar, aluminum, copper, and fiberglass, into and on top of each other, to form hard-edged overlapping planes.

Of the importance of materiality to his practice, Mr. Wallace, who is also the director of the Halsey McKay Gallery in East Hampton, has said, "An image of my work does not look anything like what it actually is, and my materials help that physical interaction with the work, which I think is interesting."