

Heinrich, Will, "Fall Preview," The New York Times, 19 September 2021

The New York Times

FALL PREVIEW

These Are the Art Shows and Events to See This Season

Amy Sherald, "An Ocean Away," 2020, from the survey "Black American Portraits," coming in November to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Credit...Amy Sherald; via Los Angeles County Museum of Art and Hauser & Wirth

From an enormous roundup of Black American portraits to a two-city retrospective of Jasper Johns, the new art season is buzzing again – and as busy as it ever was.

NO HUMANS INVOLVED Seven young artists, including Sondra Perry and Wilmer Wilson IV, examine and disrupt the categories we use to decide who does, or doesn't, deserve humane treatment. (Oct. 10-Jan. 9, 2022; Hammer Museum, hammer.ucla.edu)

WITCH HUNT Vaginal Davis, Yael Bartana, Okwui Okpokwasili and a dozen other midcareer artists working in every medium demonstrate the range of contemporary feminism in a highly anticipated show that includes specially commissioned work and debut projects. (Oct. 10-Jan. 9, 2022; Hammer Museum and the Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, hammer.ucla.edu and theicala.org)